

Light and shapes

When something is between us and the light we can only see its shape.

If you look towards a bright light, the things in front appear as black shapes. These are called silhouettes.

Here are some people waiting in an airport. You can see them only by their shapes.

Here are some shapes. What are they?