

Sources of light

Many things give out light.

The Sun is the brightest light in our world.
It is so bright we cannot look at it.

Most lights are much less bright and we only use them at night.

Here is the Sun shining from a clear blue sky.

Caution: never look directly at the Sun.

Neon lights are used for signs.

Car headlights shine ahead only.

Car dashboard
lights are quite dim.

Power button lights show when something is switched on.

You may need lots of light bulbs to light a room.

How many light bulbs have you got in your home?

Light and burning

When things burn they give out light.

When something burns it gives out light. Candles, fires and fireworks all give out light.

Sparklers give a magical light.

A fireworks' display can light up the ground.
